

3 tips to hit your driver straight

1. Alignment: Stand behind the ball and pick a spot to aim over. Then come around and aim your clubface over your spot and your feet hips and shoulders parallel to that. Don't shuffle around until you get comfortable as you might take yourself out of good aim. If direction is an issue consistently, send me a video of your swing, its free with your green room membership.
2. Path: If you come over the top or, alternatively, too much from the inside your path will cut across the line of the ball to the target and cost you direction. Work on your path using two clubs aligned at the hole and parallel to each other and swing back and through between the clubs.
3. Timing and tempo: The changeover from the backswing to the downswing is crucial to your swing especially affecting the direction. Allow a small transition period at the top of your swing, a small pause before coming down to allow the club to slot back into the correct path.

Good direction with your driver is not easy, so see your pro if you continue to struggle with it or send me a video of your swing.

GOOD LUCK,

Anne
